To our advertisers:

During these trying times, we wanted to reassure you that we are continuing to print East Coast Equestrian as we have done for the past 27 years. Horses are not a hobby – they are a lifestyle and a passion. No horse owner will sell their horses or end their passion because of a two month shutdown. Horses will continue to eat and need shavings, supplements, vet and farrier care. Horse owners will continue to ride and train. Competitions will return.

The Devon Horse Show has been canceled, so the Devon Horse Show Preview we were so excited to present will not happen this year. Many other events are canceled for the time being. However, most of our circulation is delivered in ways other than through events, so it will not be significantly impacted.

We have 4,400 subscribers who receive East Coast Equestrian at home each month. We send copies to the 405 feed stores on our list that will remain open throughout the crisis. As events return, we will work with them on bonus distribution.

We will continue to do what we do, which is bring horse owners the news they need to know, providing information on how the crisis affects the horse world and its people. With 18 national awards for editorial excellence, we are uniquely positioned for this mission.

We look forward to continuing to work with you during and long after this crisis. Stay safe, stay well, stay home.
